

Cell phone users are often unaware of the intrusion that they make on others' serenity. Airline travel is stressful enough without the addition of inflated egos yelling into a small device for the duration of a flight of any length. Perhaps "Cones of Silence" could be dropped onto cell phone users; or they could be isolated in special booths or cabins (along with the shrieking babies). Please no cell phones.